

Human and Community Engagement Minor

The Human and Community Engagement minor combines classroom instruction on human and community development theories and models with opportunities for application through engagement in the local community. This 21-credit minor will provide you with opportunities to analyze community and societal-based issues and create collaborative social change initiatives for the community and individuals across the lifespan. This minor will prepare you to serve your community as a leader and change agent.

After completing this minor, you will be able to:

- Apply human and community engagement theories, models, and concepts to a range of real-world issues.
- Promote and engage in volunteer, advocacy, and social change opportunities.
- Collaborate with others of diverse backgrounds and understand the importance of differing perspectives within a group and/or community.
- Develop communication and leadership-based skills.
- Develop strategies for addressing personal, organizational, and community issues.
- Identify opportunities for increased success of a community-based organization.
- Create a development plan for lifelong citizenship.
